THE OPPORTUNITY

A$36bn

a year, between one-person businesses and their clients in China.

A$

Australia

US$

United States

C$

Canada

Nobody is serving them. That is the whole of it.

THE DEMAND

China buys from small business.

→  A$ Australia

→  US$ United States

→  C$ Canada

In every one of these markets.

Sole traders, one-person firms, two-person studios — invoicing clients in China, and paid by whatever their client can manage.

THE PROBLEM

There is no way to pay you.

1

Their bank, in person, with ID

Two hours, and a queue

2

Your name, exactly as your bank holds it

One letter wrong and it fails

The money leaves

Nothing tells them anything

x

A week later it comes back

Start again

62% of them hold no credit card. A card was never the way out of this.

THE SOLUTION

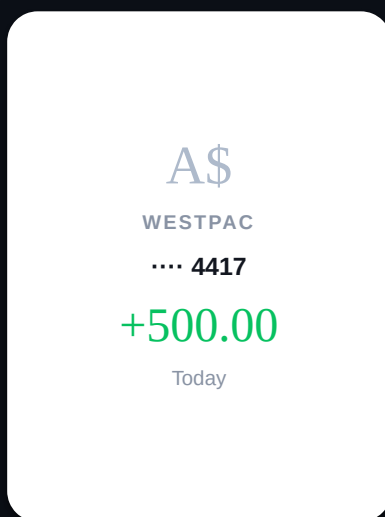

One long press.

¥2,400

A$500

9 in 10 people online in China pay this way. Every day.

No account. No app. No card number.

EVERY WEEK

A mother in Shanghai pays a tutor in Melbourne.

WITHOUT THIS

She asks her daughter to pay it and sends her the money somehow. Or the tutor waives it, because chasing it costs more than it is worth.

ONCE

A family in Beijing hires a buyer's agent in Melbourne.

北京 · 买家 → Melbourne · Buyer's agent

WITHOUT THIS

A bank transfer that needs the agent's name spelled exactly as the bank has it. It bounced once already.

ON THE SPOT

A visitor buys from a maker she just met.

Queen Victoria Market → A sole trader, no card machine

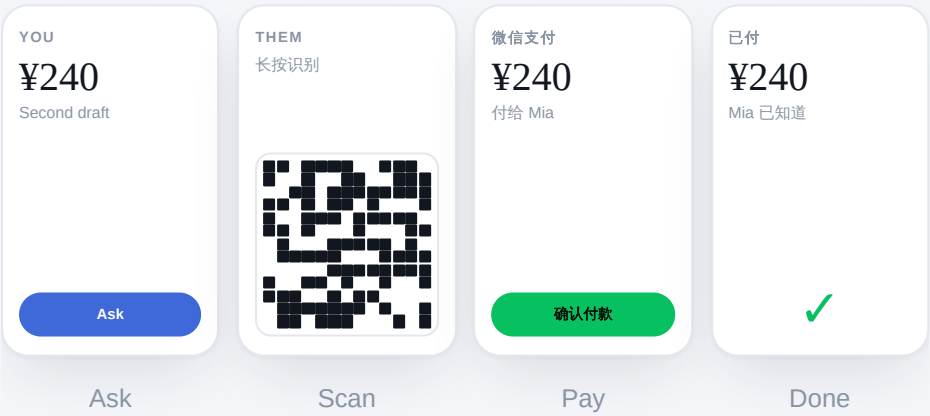

WITHOUT THIS

She has WeChat Pay and A$0 in cash. He has no way to take either, so the sale does not happen.

BUILT

It already works.

Watched finish on a phone, both directions, two languages.

THE GAP

Nobody serves one person.

PingPong	Seller account
LianLian	Seller account
XTransfer	Trade contract
Airwallex	A company
Flywire	A university
Dealio	One person

Every one of them needs an entity, a trade contract or a university standing behind the payment. This needs a name and a phone.

WHY NOT A BANK TRANSFER

A wire is cheap.
It is also rationed.

Bank fee to send	0.1%
On the rate	0.30%
Her allowance, a year	US$50,000

One allowance, for everything.

Her daughter's tuition, the family trip, a deposit — and this invoice.
A$11,500 is fifteen per cent of her year, gone on one payment that also takes a week and fails on a misspelt name.
